re: Ninth Avenue Dump/Heritage Ink

Dear Ms. Hiltner:

Heritage Ink Company was one of the supposed PRP's identified in connection with the Ninth Avenue Dump Site. The company no longer operates as Heritage Ink. It was acquired in March of 1981 by Delta Color, Inc..

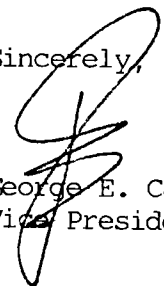

We are not familiar with either site indicated in your correspondence. We have no knowledge or record of Heritage making use of either of the two sites. Our investigation is continuing.

Furthermore, Heritage Ink's operation was not a waste generation operation. The company was a manufacturer of web-offset newspaper inks, inks which do not contain any hazardous products. All raw materials are consumed in the process, with any errors or blown batches being reintroduced into the process.

We appreciate the work you are doing to get these sites cleaned up. However, we have no knowledge of any involvement by Heritage Ink during the time period in question or at any other time. If you have any records or documentation that would indicate that Heritage was involved in either site or that would aide us in shedding light on this situation, please forward them to me.

Thank you.

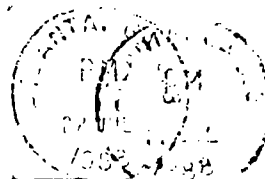

Sincerely,
